Clark's Forces Pound Nazi Lines

Balkans Become One of Principal Centers of Fighting

Allied Offensive Forces Hitler To Split His Forces

Yugoslavs Keep Enemy on Edge

BY EDWARD KENNEDY

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, ALGIERS, Oct. 11 (AP)—By land, air and sea the Allies have gradually developed an offensive in the Balkans until it has become a companion campaign to that in Italy.

With Allied air forces of both Northwest Africa and the Middle East scouring the Germans in Greece, Crete and the Dodecanese islands, and Greek and Yugoslav patriots battling them on land, the Balkan fighting today is more extensive than at any time since the British evacuated their expeditionary force in the spring of 1941.

Germans Kept Busy

At least a dozen German divisions are engaged in an effort to hold fast in the dark and bloody mountains.

A communiqué issued in Cairo by the Yugoslavs disclosing that Italian naval units had aided the partisans by shelling the Germans along the Adriatic coast indicated that a sea punch has been added to the Allies' effort.

For the sixth straight day Allied airforces carried a sizzling attack to the enemy in Greece and the islands of the Aegean yesterday and took an increasing toll of German air strength in that area, Allied headquarters announced.

Bomb Nazi Base

Flying Fortresses again made a 1,500-mile round-trip without fighter escort to blast the Nazi air base at Tatol, just opposite Athens, and the airfield at Araxos at the northwestern tip of the Peloponnesus, while RAF bombers joined in the assault on the preceding night by striking at other airfields at Maritsa and Calato on the island of Rhodes in the Dodecanese.

These blows followed a series of raids announced yesterday in which eight airfields in Greece, Crete and Rhodes were attacked.

Italians Join Patriots

Refugees arriving at Barl, on Italy's East coast, have disclosed that some Italians in Greece and Albania joined the patriot guerrillas. Others turned their arms over to the Greeks, Albanians and Yugoslavs. The Germans have had to occupy many regions formerly entrusted to Italian garrison and Adolf Hitler's forces have been sadly stretched to guard the long coastlines, outlying islands, and lines of communication through the rugged mountains.

The Germans have moved 2,000 troops from Valona and other Albanian ports to meet a possible Allied invasion from Italy. It is reported.

One reason for the German air force's weakness is told by Poles, Yugoslavs, Czechs, Slovaks and Auss.

20 to 52 Per Cent Cut in Newsprint Held Possibility

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—A possibility that an increasing shortage of paper may force American newspapers to curtail their size drastically was raised today with a warning that supplies of newsprint may be cut next year twenty to fifty-two per cent under this year's levels.

The warning came from the joint Anglo-American-Canadian committee which has been investigating the pulp and paper situation. It urged immediate action, including use of war prisoners to bolster the force of pulpwod cutters in the United States and Canada. It estimates about 38,500 additional men are needed.

The committee, in a report to the combined raw materials board, advanced two proposals to keep 1944 paper consumption in line with present estimates of production.

Under one, the allotments of newsprints, printing papers and wrapping papers would be cut fifty-two percent under 1943 quotas. This would mean a reduction from 3,620,000 tons of newsprint this year to 1,750,000 tons in 1944—making virtually inevitable revolutionary changes in the present sizes of newspapers.

Such a drastic cut would be necessary, the committee said, only if

Two Senate Democrats See Defeat In 1944 Because of OPA Attitude

Thomas and Johnson Predict Political Revolt If "Persecutions of Honest People" Continue

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—Two western Democrats predicted today a 1944 defeat for their party that "may reach the proportions of a revolution" unless, as they put it, the Office of Price Administration can be forced to "stop its persecution of honest citizens."

Senator Thomas (D-Oklahoma), an Appropriations committee man, threatened to seek new restrictions on OPA spending as a means of "confining its activities to the duties authorized by Congress."

Applauding this course, Senator Johnson (D-Colo) declared:

"People generally are sympathetic with the objective of holding down prices, but the unreasonableness of some of the OPA regulations are driving them mad."

"Some of the regulations are so voluminous and so restrictive that it is almost impossible to operate under them."

Thomas complained that Chester Bowles, OPA general manager, ignored a letter he wrote September 24 telling of a need for changes to avoid "a revolt in the 1944 elections" and declared, "it now appears more rapid steps are necessary," he added:

"While the appropriations committee can not legislate, it can restrict the use of funds it recommends for spending in such a way as to effect a repeal of illegal and obnoxious activities in which the OPA is engaging."

Republicans Rap World Bank Plan

Western States Get Less Gas

Taft To Carry Fight to Senate

Ration Is Cut By OPA Order

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—Republican opposition cropped out in Congress today to the administration's proposal for a world bank.

Senator Taft of Ohio said he would carry the fight to the Senate floor with a denunciation of the plan as "part of the general new deal program to create new methods of deficit spending."

Taft, who is a member of the Senate Banking committee which heard Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau explain the bank plan, recently closed meeting, told a reporter he was "opposed to making loans to other countries in the guise of investments."

"In effect," Taft declared, "all of the money to be loaned abroad by the bank would come from the United States. It seems to me that after the war we are going to have to make emergency loans to other countries for working capital and rehabilitation of plants and machinery but I believe those loans ought to be made directly by this government under authority of Congress."

As outlined by Morgenthau, the proposed international bank would have $10,000,000,000 in capital of which the United States would furnish $3,500,000,000. Great Britain $1,000,000,000 and other countries the remainder. The bank would make loans for rebuilding of war-damaged cities and other such projects.

Record-Smashing Food Production Expected To Meet Major Demands

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—The principal record-smashing food production this year are now being borne out as American farmers push the harvesting of late crops amid generally favorable weather conditions, the Agriculture department reported today.

Crop production, taken by itself, will be about seven percent below last year's phenomenal level. But this decline will be more than offset by an indicated increase of twelve percent in the production of live-stock and livestock products, such as cattle, hogs, sheep, poultry and eggs.

Milk Output Off

Milk output is expected to drop one percent below the 1942 record, the department said.

Reds Take Gomel, Widen Grip on Dnieper Sector

Kill 3,000 Nazis, Reported in Kiev

By JUDSON O'QUINN

LONDON, Tuesday, Oct. 12 (AP)—The Red army captured Gomel's Eastern suburbs yesterday, killing 3,000 Germans and clearing the left bank of the Sozh river opposite that vital rail hub in lower White Russia, and also widened its grip on the west bank of the Dnieper in the Ukraine, Moscow announced early today.

A broadcast communiqué recorded by the Soviet monitor said 1,000 Germans were slain in "fruitless" enemy counter-attacks seeking to stem the Russian surge beyond its three initial Dnieper river bridgeheads.

Penetrate Kiev Defenses

A London radio broadcast recorded by CBS said Soviet forces already had "penetrated the outer defense of Kiev," Ukraine capital on the Dnieper.

The capture of Novo-Beliza, a rail junction suburb of Gomel, and other localities across the Sozh river from the main prize, threatened the early flanking of the entire 200-mile German line in White Russia and the severance of enemy's already feeble connections with German Ukraine positions.

Gomel, whose railways radiate to Warsaw, Minsk and Mogilev, is the southern anchor of the German White Russian line and the center of an industrial area just above the edge of the Pripyat marshes.

Two hundred miles to the north other Soviet units converging on Vitebsk, upper anchor of the enemy's defense line in White Russia, raced through forty more villages, killed 1,300 more enemy troops, captured huge quantities of equipment, and freed 40,000 Russian civilians whom the Germans were forcibly driving to slave labor in Germany," the bulletin said.

Republians and Democrats Both Shun Sales Tax as Party Issue

Strong Support of Revenue Plan To Come From Individual Members of Both Houses

By FRANCIS M. LEMAY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—Neither Republicans nor Democrats, as a party, appear likely at this stage to support a ten cent federal sales tax, but the idea shapes up as the big issue in writing legislation to funnel new billions into the wartime treasury.

Some legislators from both groups lined up today against the tax, proposed by Rep. Robertson (D-Va) as a substitute for the administration's battership program to raise $10,500,000,000 through higher levies on individual and corporate incomes and on so-called luxuries.

Rep. Lynch Opposed

Rep. Lynch (D-N.Y.) issued a statement opposing sales taxes and suggesting that "the way to raise the money required for war needs is through increased corporate and estate tax rates."

Dr. J. E. Shepard of Durham, N. C., president of the North Carolina College for Negroes, appeared before the House Ways and Means committee, now framing new tax legislation, in support of a ten or twelve per cent sales levy.

The negro educator declared "all of us must sacrifice and sacrifice until it hurts if we are to win this war," and he gave these arguments for a sales tax:

Presents Argument

"It reaches the surplus buying power which is being piled up and is being cut loose, in a lot of instances, causing inflation; it will make everybody conscious of the fact that they are paying some cost of the government and some cost of services that are being rendered to them, where otherwise if the tax were placed on business it would be passed back to them in the form of hidden taxes, and they would not realize they were paying any part of the cost of government."

Feed To Be Scarce

The department emphasized, however, that the supply of corn and other feed grains and materials will not be sufficient to maintain the present rate of livestock feeding. Anticipating such a possibility, the War Food Administration has already asked that fewer hogs be raised next year.

Milk Output Off

Milk output is expected to drop one percent below the 1942 record, the department said.

Nazi Battleship Tirpitz Damaged In Daring Raid

Midget Submarines Torpedo Sea Giant

By PUGH MOORE

LONDON, Tuesday, Oct. 12 (AP)—British midget submarines, penetrating the heavily-guarded Norwegian hideout of the German fleet, have crippled the mighty battleship Tirpitz and left her apparently immobilized.

Three of the small subs—a hitherto undisclosed weapon for the British—are missing. A group of the submersibles, 1,000 miles from home, threaded their way fifty miles into narrow Alten Fjord, through m infields and heavy patrols, to attack the Tirpitz Sept. 22, an admiral announcement today disclosed. They attacked the Tirpitz beneath her waterline.

Three Submarines Missing

A London radio broadcast recorded by CBS said Soviet forces already had "penetrated the outer defense of Kiev," Ukraine capital on the Dnieper.

The admiralty said it was impossible to assay the damage at the time of the attack, but reconnaissance photographs taken three weeks later showed the 35,000-ton pride of the Nazi fleet had not moved from her anchorage and oil spouting from her great tanks had spread for two miles.

The admiralty said it was impossible to assay the damage at the time of the attack, but reconnaissance photographs taken three weeks later showed the 35,000-ton pride of the Nazi fleet had not moved from her anchorage and oil spouting from her great tanks had spread for two miles.

Usually conservative to the extreme, the admiralty's description of the exploit used such terms as "inviting hazards of the first order," magnitude of the difficulties" and "displayed the highest qualities of courage, enterprise and skill."

Details Lacking

Details of the size and complement of the little craft were not announced. Jane's authoritative "fighting ships" shows British class "H" training submarines of 410 to 500 tons with a complement of twenty-two, but "presumably the midgets are much smaller."

The announcement stressed that to reach the hiding place of the Nazi warships the submarines were forced to operate more than 1,000 miles from the nearest British base.

Strike Spreading

Roving bands of strikers at St. Louis—newest scene of the work stoppage—covered the city in automobiles, turning back loaded vans. The number of idle drivers increased hourly.

"If you're not sick, get sick," one St. Louis driver said he was told when ordered back to the garage. Another turned-back driver said there was "no use getting your head knocked off."

The Partisans said the Germans were falling back in the Susak area, just across the bridge from Plume.

Other fresh successes announced by the Patriots as their forces were engaged in wide-spread operations along the shores of the Adriatic and along railway lines leading from the coast to German supply bases and railroad junctions in the interior, were the capture of Belgrade, the town of Kajinija, seventy-five miles south of Vinkovci and about the same distance west of the former capital at Bileća, the town of Kajinica and the Slavonian town of Cacen on the Zagreb-Vinkovci railway.

"Eight army patrols are pushing westward vigorously," an Allied announcement said. Montgomery's advance has been slow since the Nazis rushed the sixteenth armored division to oppose him five days ago.

In addition to holding the North Dalmatian coast, the Yugoslav Patriots said they had occupied all of the myriad islands along the coast.

McNutt Predicts Industry Hiring Will Be Trebled

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS

BOSTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the War Manpower Commission, told the AFL convention today that the war industry hiring rate would have to be trebled in the next six months and he implied that voluntary methods have not yet proven adequate to do the job.

McNutt refrained from endorsing national service legislation but at the same time he gave no substantial encouragement that such legislation could be avoided.

DETROIT — While hundreds of their relatives are battling Japs in China, Detroit's Chinatown is making history on the United States war production front.

One-third of the city's eligible Chinese male population is pounding the production line daily working on the Curtiss-Wright Hell-diver bombers at the Hudson Motor Car company.

Chinese women have also joined their men. Until recently, the Hudson company featured the only all-Chinese production line in the nation, but factory schedules forced a change.

The idea stemmed from George Yee, 26, secretary of Yee Fong Toy tong, and Ben Leong, a former Chinese newspaper photographer and restaurant owner, both leaders of Detroit's Chinese population. They approached the company last January and sought permission to recruit factory help among their own people when the manpower situation here was at a very low point.

It was not so much a question of money, they said, as an opportunity to aid their suffering people on the home front.

A trial was promised and the two men went home with the news. The response was terrific, the women more enthused than the men.

Gallant, industrious workers, they set a production pace for their Allies to follow.

How does the company like it? Let Sam Frame, head of the Hudson training school, tell.

"The Chinese are among the best workers we have ever had," says Frame.

"They are devoted and take infinite pains to make sure that each and every one of their jobs is performed correctly. They are in here not only for the money, but to actually help win the war."

"Virtually none of them had ever been inside a factory before attending our school but they learned quickly and have developed into very capable employees."

The workers?

"It was quite a change," said Yee, now a repairman.

"Most of us had worked either in restaurants or laundries. After the war I expect that many will return to China where they anticipate a big post-war business boom."

FREDERICK, Md., Oct. 11 (AP) — Louis L. Kline, 48-year-old relief client from plane 4, near Frederick, was convicted late today on a charge of "accessory before murder in the second degree" in the death of John Henry Gillis, and was sentenced to serve eighteen years in the Maryland penitentiary.

He was found innocent of a charge of accessory before murder in the first degree in the bludgeon slaying of the 80-year-old storekeeper.

Earlier in the day Kline testified in his own defense at the trial before Associate Judges Stedman Prescott and Patrick M. Schnaufer that he had opposed an attempt to rob Gillis.

In passing sentence Judge Schnaufer declared it was the "most brutal murder in the history of Frederick county" but that the punishment the court could mete out was limited by statute.

Grocers of the Nation Hit Food Subsidies

STRONG OPPOSITION is being registered against government food subsidies by the National Association of Retail Grocers, which contends that today "America must pay as it eats, instead of leaving today's grocery bills for tomorrow's citizens to pay."

Mrs. R. M. Kiefer, secretary-manager, has presented the association's stand in telegrams to the chairmen of the House and Senate committees on banking and currency.

"America's food industry, including farmers, processors and retailers," the telegram stated, "is unalterably opposed to plans for billion-dollar government subsidy of food production. Subsidy means only tremendous extension of government control, pyramiding administration costs and an insupportable tax burden not only for men now fighting but for generations of the future."

"We believe that a few cents more added to the prices of today's food will not only mean increased production but will be the least costly way to the taxpayers of solving the chaotic food situation.... We believe that subsidies will ultimately mean curtailed production of food and credit inflation."

To increase production and stop inflation, we suggest, first, establishment of basic prices at processor levels in such relationship as will encourage production and distribution; second, setting maximum ceilings at levels which will allow efficient distributors to remain in business; third, simplification of price control and of rationing to cover essential foods only; fourth, declaration of essentiality for the food industry; fifth, simplification of regulations and orders so that compliance is possible for every one."

A forthright, sensible and practical stand, indeed, representing constructive criticism with suggested remedies. What the association declares as to the evil consequences of big food subsidies corroborates what the representative of this district in the House of Representatives, J. Glenn Beall, has been contending. Several months ago, Beall stressed four unassailable points in support of his opposition to these subsidies, which he declared, as has this newspaper, mean merely taking more money out of one pocket than it put back into another.

Beall noted that the threat of inflation is increased by an increased spending power these subsidies will provide; that they merely postpone the day when we will have to pay our food bill "and then twice over"; that the wage earner of this generation will have to pay a disproportionate share of that part of the national debt resulting from subsidy payments; and that it is economically wrong to pass on to our sons and daughters, and to the soldiers and sailors on the battle front, payment for the food we are eating today as well as any part of the war debt we can possibly pay.

One thing about these food subsidies designed for temporary relief is that they must be paid for. There is no getting around that. The sensible thing to do would be to pay for them in the least burdensome way. Current payment of an obligation is far better than paying it with interest-bearing borrowed money, which runs over the years and greatly increases the cost of it. It is of especial importance now in view of the problems and pitfalls of an uncertain postwar period.

Experimental Basis For Incentive Pay

IN APPROVING an incentive pay plan submitted and approved by the management and employees of an aircraft corporation, the War Labor Board has at last indicated that it believes that it has reached a safe experimental basis for a pay rate directly connected to output.

Under the incentive pay plan, employees are paid according to their production rating. The plan avoids the evils of the piece-work system as used by some employers. They formerly used it to extract the utmost from an employee, and then reduced the rate so that in order to make a fair wage he had to work at a strain level. That was bad for the employee, and, in the end, bad for management.

The experiment authorized by the WLB attempts to prevent a wage increase in conflict with its general stabilization policy. Employees will receive a predetermined wage increase as production increases. Since the corporation is working on war orders, the government has a check, through its own inspectors, on any tendency to step up production at the expense of quality.

Opposition to incentive pay is strong because of association with so-called stretch-out practices, and, in recently growing volume, because of fear that it may set up competition among wage earners that will injure the union movement. But in spirit it is in line with the American policy of creating better products at lower prices, without reducing American living standards, as a means of competing with cheap foreign products in the world market.

The view is toward postwar competition for trade, and this view must be kept in mind if the country is to prosper.

Spirit of Columbus Will Win the War

ONE OF the curious features of the discovery of the New World by Columbus is the trail of accidents connected with it. Columbus was right when he believed the world to be round. But he imagined that by heading west he could find a short route to the East Indies. From his point of view, therefore, it was purely fortuitous that he happened to bump into San Salvador.

There is a possibility that the voyage would never have been undertaken at all had not a cartographer made a serious mistake in calculating distances. He is supposed to have supplied Columbus with a map on which Japan was shown in a position about 2,500 miles west of the Canary Islands. If the real distance had been suspected, the explorer might have found it impossible to sign a crew.

But all the mistakes were fortunate ones. At any rate, after 451 years, here is the New World. And despite the Herculean problems that have been heaped upon it by the Old World, the suggestion is no longer heard that the country ought to be given back to the Indians.

Columbus Day observances this year will call attention anew to the magnificent concentration upon the task at hand that Columbus exemplified. It is the spirit of Columbus that is winning this war and that will make the New World safe from aggression in the future.

A Sufficient Answer To the School Grant

IF anyone has been looking for a sufficient answer to the question whether the measure pending in Congress for federal subsidization of the public schools of this country should be adopted or rejected, that person has had it in the report from Washington that the New Deal forces in Congress have entered the battle in behalf of its passage.

The measure would appropriate $300,000,000 a year in federal grants to the public schools of the nation, hitherto supported and managed, as they should be, by state and local governments. It is an enticing hand-out, to be sure, but it isn't a gift never to be paid for by taxpayers.

Federal and state taxes come out of the same pockets of the same individuals. Shifting the take from one pocket to the other does not erase the burden; and an addition of taxes merely means greater taxes for the people to pay.

In view of the steady encroachment of the federal government on the rights of the states, the persistent and adroit buildup of centralized power and the tremendous growth of bureaucratic prerogative, the announcement from Washington that the New Deal is strongly behind this bill not only provides an adequate answer for opposition to it, but also indicates that the New Deal will not stop at any spending point to extend its control and fortify its entrenchment.

Among his fellow Japanese cabinet members, Premier Tojo is known as "The Razor." They should know a natural cutthroat when they see one.

Are You a Blackmailer?

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Are you a blackmailer? Most of us are—occasionally.

I do not mean the kind of blackmailer who sits in the backroom, disguises his handwriting and writes: "Put ten thousand dollars under the front doorstop by 10 o'clock tomorrow night or I'll steal your baby and you'll never see him again." Or threatens to blow up your house or stab you in the back some dark night.

I mean the Blackmailer that we sometimes are in our relations with our families. We read in the newspaper of a blackmailing plot and we say: "What a terrible way THAT is to earn a living! Why doesn't a man go out and make something and sell it, or find something and sell it, or sell his labor for money—if he wants it so bad? Why does he try to frighten it out of people?"

We say that and then we blackmail our families. We get our own way by BLACKMAIL—and this is how we do it:

We wish something done and it isn't done. So we say: "All right, if you won't do what I want, then I won't do what you want! If YOU won't go to the football game with ME, then I won't go to the symphony concert with YOU."

We tell children that if they don't get better marks in their studies, then they can't go to a party or can't have a bicycle.

We get our way through threats. Sometimes we call it Self-Respect. Sometimes we call it Getting Even. Usually, when we are threatening children, we call it Discipline.

But it's a form of blackmail. WE were blackmailed when we were children and we accepted it as the proper method of getting what we wanted. It worked on us and we ought to work it on other people, now that we are older and have a shred of power.

But nevertheless—it's BLACKMAIL!

Air Ban by Russia For Allies Is Seen As a Big Handicap

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The 1,500-mile raid by American bombers from London to Poland and return poses some significant questions for the Russian government to answer.

Obviously such raids would be better executed from bases within the present Russian lines.

The American people can well understand why Russia hesitates to grant Siberian bases lest the Soviets become involved prematurely in a war with Japan while the European front still demands so much of Russian manpower and resources. But what will not be understood is the Russian disinclination to let the American air forces operate from behind the Russian lines in Europe—a disinclination which has some justification perhaps in the domestic affairs of Russia but which would seem to be outweighed in importance by the greater necessity of a Russian-American collaboration of air forces against Germany.

The problem may, on the other hand, acquire domestic aspects as related to American public opinion. Thus it is not pleasant for the American people to read the following excerpt from an Associated Press dispatch from London in connection with the long-range raid into Poland over the week end:

"A classic remark by returning crewmen, most of whom were aware that the raid took them within fairly close range of the battling Russian armies, came from Lieut. Joseph W. Kane, of Lynbrook, Long Island, N. Y., who cracked: 'I was surprised that the Russian fighter support didn't show up.'

Not a New Idea

The Russians cannot operate our "Flying Fortresses" and heavy bombers as well as can an American air force. Raids such as recently took place from North African bases against Roumanian oil fields would better have been operated from Russian bases. The idea of having American air force units fight beside the Russians is not new. It has been broached from time to time and it is a natural piece of Allied cooperation.

The reasons for Russia's unwillingness to have American air force units fighting alongside Russian units is said to be related to the fact that this would require a large number of American ground troops and an American supply system. This in turn is said to be frowned upon because the American army is better fed and better equipped and the Russians are believed to feel that it might cause dissatisfaction among their own troops who would see the more luxurious treatment given the Americans alongside of them and would demand the same which, of course, might be impossible since transport facilities into Russia for our food and equipment are necessarily limited.

Fleet Bombing Important

But there can be no mistaking the importance from a policy standpoint of the raid into Poland by a force of American bombers. Here is America's might reaching out to within a few hundred miles of the Russian lines and actually fighting on the eastern front in Europe, fighting to help rid the Baltic of Germany's naval power. For it is no secret that American strategists have long felt that something should be done to bomb the remnants of the Nazi fleet out of the water because the presence of a few vessels tips up huge numbers of British warships in the North Atlantic or vigilant patrols lest some of the German warships break loose and become commerce raiders.

The American point of view has been that air power should be used in conjunction with sea power and that the targets in Norway where German ships have been hiding and the targets in occupied France where Nazi submarine bases were permitted to be built to almost impregnable strength should have been attacked much earlier. Their destruction might have materially affected long ago the course of the present war.

Pacific Help Needed

For the United States needs help in the Pacific war—more sea power and more air power, and as long as so much naval power is tied up in the Atlantic watching a few German ships the Nazis and Japanese arechieving an effective piece of potential blockade if not immobiliza-tion of a big part of our sea power.

The reasons for Russia's unwillingness to have American air force units fighting alongside Russian units is said to be related to the fact that this would require a large number of American ground troops and an American supply system. This in turn is said to be frowned upon because the American army is better fed and better equipped and the Russians are believed to feel that it might cause dissatisfaction among their own troops who would see the more luxurious treatment given the Americans alongside of them and would demand the same which, of course, might be impossible since transport facilities into Russia for our food and equipment are necessarily limited.

Fleet Bombing Important

But there can be no mistaking

the importance from a policy standpoint of view of the raid into Poland return poses some significant questions for the Russian government to answer.

This being the case, the duty devolves upon Congress to write a revolutionary measure of its own which will meet the actual needs of the situation in the most generally fair and satisfactory way.

The first step in this direction, it would seem to this newspaper, is to pare the bill down to reasonable proportions. And the most important tool in accomplishing this is the new undeniably realistic picture

which supplants the grandiose nothing.

The evidence of this discerning report substantiates again in its broad aspects the reports of the five senators from the Far Pacific.

It calls again for development of more American self-interest in dealing with allies and more realism in both war and postwar preparations. It completes the picture, the

new undeniably realistic picture

Philadelphia Detectives Prove Efficient

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11 (AP) — Detective Lieutenant John Murphy and Detective Andrew J. Kelleher found three things Sunday for Mrs. Leah Hammaker, 23, of Hagerstown, Md.

A mini coat, her soldier husband John and a place to wait until her husband joined her.

Weeping, Mrs. Hammaker told the detectives she missed a bus which was to take her to New York to meet her husband, just back from North Africa. The coat, valued at $500, was on the bus, she added.

A telephone call to Trenton, N. J., located the coat. Another call to the New York terminal of the bus line located the husband, who started for Philadelphia at once.

Then the detectives found a room for Mrs. Hammaker in a crowded mid-city hotel.

Her husband and the coat arrived on schedule, and the Hammakers got together for Hagerstown.

The Johnson

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR

THE OVERWHELMING realization to him made Bill Potter more eager than ever to settle the business deal with Alicia Carter, so that he could get out of her life, and put her out of him. He was thinking about this the next day in his office when Ken Randolph came in.

Bill eyed him and frowned.

"I think it's about time," he said. "When it comes to making a decision, you run neck and neck with the Carter woman."

"Maybe so," said Ken. "But she's so uncertain of herself; she makes me uneasy." He paused and grinned a bit shamefacedly. "Besides, Bill, most of the money in my family is controlled by my wife, and she—"

"But you told me you had several thousand you wanted to invest," Bill cut in.

"I know—but Mrs. Randolph's pretty dubious about my investing it in Alicia Carter's property."

"Why did you tell her anything about it?"

"I always discuss matters like that with her."

"I see. Well, what's the verdict?"

"It's no."

"I was afraid of that," said Bill warily. "I'm also afraid Alicia's verdict will be the same. Would you be winning to help me buy up some other property?"

"Perhaps," said Ken. "Any in mind?"

"Yes. The old Johnson farm."

"That dump!" Ken exclaimed. "It's been deserted for years—and run-down as all get-out."

"Well, I don't think it's deserted any longer."

"What do you mean?"

Bill told about seeing the men unloading a motor boat. But don't say anything about it around Susan if you see her," he added. "She doesn't know I passed the farm last night. She thought I was working at the office."

"Ah, I see! Sneaking off to see Alicia!"

"She telephoned me," said Bill. "So I made a quick trip."

"It must have been a quick trip—if it was after one o'clock when you passed the Johnson farm."

"Never mind that part of it," said Bill. "The thing to discuss is the farm itself. We could build a good road leading from the highway, and build some nice houses out that way. The only thing is getting in touch with the Johnsons. They're scattered all over the face of the earth."

"Maybe it's some of them you saw last night," said Ken.

"By Jove, that's right!" said Bill. "Come on, let's drive out and have a look. Got time to spare?"

"Yes," said Ken. "Besides, I'd like nothing better than to see some cottages going up along the plans I've got in mind."

The two men hurried out together, and presently they were speeding off in Bill's roadster.

Meanwhile Adam North was also thinking about the Johnson farm. As a matter of fact, he thought about it frequently. In spite of himself he kept associating the farm, the pantry woman's nephew, and also remembered the piece of machinery that had suddenly gone bad in some manner they were all connected. Maybe it was silly of him—but that's the way it was. Anyway, he was far from calm and happy because of someone's carelessness. Things that pointed to sabotage, and yet things which couldn't seem to be traced. No matter how careful the investigation, he always came up against a blank wall. No one could be accused, because everyone appeared to have a cast iron alibi.

Because of those things, and because of his feeling of uneasiness, the feeling that espionage as well as sabotage had come to Linville—he had increased the guard around the factory and grounds, had appointed men to report every slightest matter that looked in the least suspicious. All the fire-extinguishers had been examined, and a careful watch kept over them. Workmen's papers had been re-examined, many of them questioned minutely, and every precaution possible taken in each and every department of the plant.

He sat at his desk and tried to concentrate on the business at hand, but it was difficult, for he kept remembering a blaze in the engine house which had increased in vehemence when a fire-extinguisher was turned upon it, for the simple reason that the extinguisher had been filled with gasoline. He appeared. She looked lovelier than ever, Adam thought, her color high, her eyes bright—and her mouth looking decidedly kissable. Then Adam thought, "I must be going crazy, thinking such things when I have so much that's important on my mind."

"Hello, Adam!" Brenda greeted. Adam got up and held out his hand. "Glad to see you," he said. "In town pretty early, aren't you?"

"Yes," said Brenda. She took the chair Adam indicated, drew it up closer to his desk. "Adam, someone visited the Johnson place last night," she announced.

Vanity Cases Date To Ancient Aztecs

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—S. K. Lowe, associate of the Tulane University Institute of Middle American Research, says male dandies of the Aztec Indian tribe carried "vanity cases" long before women got around to that nicely.

As far back as the 13th century, the Aztecs used discs of polished iron ore or volcanic rock as portable mirrors. Sometimes these mirrors were set in fancy flat Ruth disappeared, and Brenda pieces of scalloped limestone.

War Production May Give Way to Civilian Supply

Peak Reached In Many Plants

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—America's production of war supplies has about reached the peak where some scaling down in favor of more civilian goods will become possible.

This condition in the war economy is attributed on excellent authority to two circumstances:

Can Cut Schedules

First, the gigantic task of building or converting factories to munitions output is complete; the overall production is going well and the schedules originally set up for some types of military and naval equipment can be cut to fit actual war requirements more exactly.

Second, because of the advanced state of war operations, particularly in Europe, military and naval planners now can estimate their future needs with greater certainty. This makes possible elimination of any projected munitions output no longer considered necessary.

Could Save Billions

One expert familiar with the reviews of production planning initiated by President Roosevelt, says that an estimated $100,000,000 program for 1944 might be trimmed as much as six or eight billion dollars. Any actual cut, however, is primarily up to the president's War Mobilization Board.

A question also arises how much of the cut can be reflected in increased manufacture of essential civilian goods. Officials with whom this was discussed agree that no civilian manufacturers would be resumed if they interfered in any way with stated military requirements of the joint chiefs of staff.

Survey Under Way

At the direction of President Roosevelt, however, the joint chiefs, General George C. Marshall, Admiral Ernest J. King and Admiral William D. Leahy, have organized a production survey committee responsible only to themselves for the express purpose of dovetailing production into the strategy of the war.

As another step in the process, James F. Byrnes, war mobilization chief, will initiate early this week an exhaustive study of industrial demobilization and related postwar economic problems, preparatory to drafting a demobilization program.

While the program's objective will be to ease industry into the post-war period with a minimum of maladjustment, the work must begin long before the war ends and some of the recommendations undoubtedly will be put into effect before then.

O'Connor Wins Hog, Will Donate Oysters

ANNAPOLES, Md., Oct. 11 (AP)—The governor of Nebraska won't count his wager on war bond drive results a bad bet—not entirely—because he'll get some Maryland oysters anyway.

Governor O'Connor says that he will send Gov. Dwight Griswold a barrel of the Free State's best oysters anyway.

Fire-proofed cotton batting, treated with a non-deteriorating composition, is now on the market.

OAKLAND, Oct. 11—Garrett county farmers will vote for three of five supervisors who are to govern the recently formed Garrett County Soil Conservation district, it has been announced by John H. Carter, county agent. The voting will take place Wednesday, October 20, he said.

A polling station will be open in his office in the post office building, Oakland, from 8:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m., where all eligible voters may cast votes.

The State Soil Conservation committee, with headquarters at College Park, have already appointed two of the supervisors, Harry L. Porter, Oakland, and Foster Yost, Accident.

These two men and the three elected will direct the activities of the new district in the erosion control and drainage program.

Carter said that mail ballots had been sent out so that farmers may vote by mail and not be compelled to come to the Oakland office.

Eight men have been nominated for the offices of supervisor: John Beachy, Grantsville; Emerson Blitsch, Friendsville; Arthur Blitsch, Swanton; Paul Friend, Oakland; Dorsey Guard, Somersfield, Pa.; Oscar Harman, Accident; Jasper Myers, Kitzmiller; and A. P. Sanders, Oakland.

The state committee, officially responsible for the referendum, has pointed out that all persons, farmers or corporations who possess any farm land in the area, whether owners, lessees, renters, or tenants, are eligible to vote, each person voting for three supervisors.

There are about 2,200 farms in the county.

Club Elects Officers

ANTHONY, Oct. 11—Anthony Monahan was elected president of the Citizens and Veterans Club at a meeting last night in the Junior Order hall. Monahan served overseas in the First World war and is an active member and captain of the national guard. Lack of Interest Send Stock Prices Down in a Dull Market

By BERNARD S. O'HARA

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (P) — Light selling pressure, coupled with buying timidity, sufficed to put the stock market on a generally downward drift today and leaders were trimmed fractions to more than a point.

It was obvious that even the most bullish customers inclined to keep commitments at a minimum because of tomorrow's Columbus Day holiday. Tax clouds again served to keep the banks of conservatives well positioned.

The list, moderately steady at the start, soon began to slip. A few recoveries cropped up near the close but there were unimpressive. Transfers of 479,585 shares compared with 558,790 in the preceding 3-hour session.

Douglas Aircraft was an exception in the offside current, getting up 1% while Sperry advanced 1%. Others managing to finish ahead moderately included International

U. S. governments were steady.

Irish Film Beauties in "Fallen Sparrow"

Director Richard Wallace swears that the casting of three Irish screen beauties in the top feminine roles of "The Fallen Sparrow" was purely coincidental. The film starts Thursday at the Liberty theater.

In the big RKO Radio drama of love and espionage he wanted a red-head, blonde and brunette each to make a play for hero John Garfield. He would suspect that deadly enemy agents were using them as feminine lure — offering him a choice, in event he didn't prefer blondes!

So the director picked Garfield's auburn-haired co-star, Maureen O'Hara, and blonde Martha O'Driscoll and dark-haired Patricia Morrison. All three as Irish as the shamrock!

Yankees Re-Establish Baseball Supremacy by Blanking Cardinals

Dickey's Two-Run Homer and Chandler's Pitching Feature Final Series Game

By JUDSON BAILEY

BREAKS UP SERIES

BILL DICKEY . . . Yankees' veteran catcher, brought the 1943 World Series to a close yesterday when he drove out a two-run homer in the sixth to beat the Cards, 2-0, in the fifth game of the classic.

The 36-year-old Dickey, one of the greatest backstops in the history of the game, decided the final skirmish in the sixth inning with a two-run homer that landed on the roof of the right field pavilion, 325 feet from the plate.

It was a mighty blow to climax the lustrous career of Dickey, who has been on nine Yankee squads in the World Series starting as a rookie in 1928, and it helped Chandler, the 34-year-old dean of New York's mound staff, to his second success of the series.

Without this hefty Homer the last contest of the classic might easily have gone either way in spite of the shutdown pitching of the Georgia right-hander, for Chandler was pelted for ten hits and was kept in almost constant trouble by the Cardinals.

At the start of the duel it was Mort Cooper, ace of the Cards, who appeared invincible as he struck out the first five batters he faced and he was going strong in search of a repeat victory over the Yanks right up until the time Dickey punched the winning ticket.

New Attendance Record

He had retired the first two batters in the top half of the sixth when Charley (King Kong) Keller, an example in futility during most of the series, topped a ball that rolled into right field for a single.

On the next pitch Dickey hammered out his Homer and that was the ball game, although there were other trimmings for the fans, whose presence brought a new attendance record of 277,312 for a five-game series.

Altogether the Yankees made just seven hits and Dickey's clout was only his fifth of the series, but it was his fourth with men on bases and the third which drove in runs.

The Cardinals used every effort Manager Billy Southworth could conceive to stave off defeat. They made two changes in their outfit, subbing Johnny Hopp and Debs Girms for Harry Walker and Danny Litwhiler, and they tried to stir up their old base-running style of speed and thunder.

They succeeded in making a gripping ball game of the final tussle in place of their doleful performance Sunday but it was no use.

In the first inning they got two runners on base with one out on an infield single, a sacrifice and a walk, but they couldn't break through.

In the second inning they put two on with none out as Ray Sanders singled and banged into Shortstop Frank Crosetti to make him drop the ball on a doubleplay attempt on Hopp's bouncer, but again it was to no avail.

Lanier Replaces Cooper

Walter Cooper singled with two out in the third and was thrown out trying to make it a double.

A single and walk gave the Redbirds two runners with none out in the fourth and they came up with one hit in the sixth and seventh stanzas and two each in the eighth and ninth. Yet for all the good it did them they might just as well have been held hitless, for Chandler managed to tighten down and suppress every threat.

Laurel Stakes To Be Contested At Pimlico Today

Shut Out Heads Field of Nine Named for $10,000 Event

By DONALD SANDERS

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, ST. LOUIS. Oct. 11 (P)—The New York Yankees re-established their supremacy in baseball today by cornering the desperately-struggling St. Louis Cardinals, 2 to 0, before 18,172 fans for their fourth victory in five games of the 1943 World Series.

It was the tenth world championship for the deadly Bombers from the Bronx and the clincher was delivered by two of the veterans who have shared in the spoils of many of those previous triumphs—Pitcher Spud Chandler and Catcher Bill Dickey.

The 36-year-old Dickey, one of the greatest backstops in the history of the game, decided the final skirmish in the sixth inning with a two-run Homer that landed on the roof of the right field pavilion, 325 feet from the plate.

Shut Out Heads Field of Nine Named for $10,000 Event

By DONALD SANDERS

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, ST. LOUIS. Oct. 11 (P)—The old Arkansas string bean swung on the first pitch, the ball sailed to the right field pavilion roof and the Yankees became baseball's world champions for the tenth time. Bill Dickey's home-run swing in the sixth inning was as rhythmic and effortless as it was decisive. And it was strictly in line with that old Yankee practice of one swing and out of the park to pay dividends.

Stan Musial, the National League batting champion, his only 288 bats of nine horses, headed by Greenlee stable's Shut Out, was named today to contest the $10,000 added Laurel Stakes, which will feature the Columbus day racing series, thirty-seven to thirty-five.

Jimmy Brown, Cards' second baseman last year, gathered fourteen autographed baseballs in the dressing room for friends at hiserry command base at Memphis.

Araco To Ride Shut Out

Although he has been far off his peak form this year—his principal victory being in the mile Wilson stakes—Shut Out won his most recent start at Belmont and has been working well at Pimlico and last Friday turned a mile in 1:40.3 over a rather slow track.

Shut Out will be top-weighted Grimes's With Regards in the allowance test of a mile and seventy yards. Both will carry 118 pounds.

Named to face the barrier with Shut Out, was his three-year-old stablemate, Famous Victory.

Last year's three-year-old champion, scheduled to make his first start at the Old Hill Top oval since he drove out a two-run Homer in the sixth to beat the Cards, 2-0, in the fifth game of the classic year.

The grim-faced manager's face broke into a warm smile, as he patted the youth on the back.

"We'll be right in there next year," he comforted.

Riverland Won in 1942

Others besides the Greenlee entries named to go to the Post tomorrow included With Regards, which was second in the second division of the six furlong Capital handicap here Saturday: Col. Gussey Ring's Havelock, Hal Price Headley's anticlimax, Calumet farm's Son of Peace, and the midwestern Cinderella horse, Devereaux and Farrell's Bold Captain.

Should all nine horses go to the barrier in the transplanted Laurel Park feature, the stake would have a gross value of $12,800. Last year's renewal, run over the mile route, was won by Riverland, since destroyed.

In the fifth Tuck Stainback singled with one out, was sacrificed to second and raced to third on a wild pitch but Crosetti raised a helping hand.

Crosetti fouled off numerous pitches before going out, however, and one of these tips struck Catcher Walker Cooper on the index finger of his right hand causing a compound dislocation that forced him out of the game. He kicked his mitt along the ground in front of him in disgust as he trudged toward the dugout.

Ken O'Dea Sparks

As it turned out, however, the injury to their regular catcher did not hurt the Cardinals for his replacement, Ken O'Dea, made two hits on his two times at bat and same through with a sparkling fielding play in which he caught Chandler's pop foul with two on and one in the ninth.

The victory enabled the Yankees to catch a train back to New York just as they had hoped by winning three straight games since their one loss to Mort Cooper in the second game at New York.

It also meant that each player received the long end of the players' share in the series pool amounting to $6,123.20 for each member of the winning squad. The Cardinals' players shares were worth $4,321.99 each.

Bombers Stage Noisy Demonstration after Regaining Crown

By CHARLES DUNKLEY

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, ST. LOUIS. Oct. 11 (P)—Lefty Art Fletcher, the Bombers' shutout pitcher, was called out on strikes and beefed on the third strike which was a low outside curve. Metheny also struck out. Johnson worked the count to three and two, and then fanned. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

CARDS — Klein smashed a grounder off Chandler's shins and beat it out for a single. Garms sacrificed. Johnson to Etten. Musial walked. W. Cooper hit a slow bounder to short and forced Musial to Gordon. Klein reaching third. Kurowski bounced to Johnson and was thrown out. No runs, one hit, no errors, two left.

Shift Will Drop the Tuesday Commentary by John B. Hughes

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP)—The American Forum of the MBS list takes another new time. It still will be on Tuesday nights, but the hour is 9:30 instead of 8. In this transfer, the debate goes back to its former allotment of forty-five minutes. This shift drops the Tuesday night commentary by John B. Hughes.

Another MBS transfer moves the Sinfonietta—finally—to 8 o'clock from 11:30. And now that the conductor, Alfred Wallenstein has gone to the Los Angeles Philharmonic guests will be on the podium, starting with William Steinberg.

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

Fall Chores in the Victory Garden

The new victory gardener now looks forward eagerly to getting at his or her gardening next spring. The more experienced gardener begins now to prepare and plan for next year's garden.

There are many advantages to be gained from "fall chores" in the Victory garden. Soil, for example, which is worked thoroughly in the fall can usually be planted two weeks earlier in the spring.

Fall planting of many fruit trees, and fruiting shrubs permits them more

Allegany County Men Are Named On WLB Panel

Industrial, Labor and Civic Leaders Will Represent the Public

BALTIMORE, Oct. 12—Industrial, labor and civic leaders from Maryland, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Southern New Jersey and the District of Columbia who were named today as dispute panel members by the Regional War Labor Board will meet with the board in Baltimore, Wednesday and Thursday.

They will be guests of the board Thursday at the public hearing in the Wesley hall restaurant case, Washington, in the state court house.

The panel members named today will serve together with some 300 others named in the other parts of the four-state region in the solving of disputes between industry and labor.

Panel members from Maryland representing the public include:

Cumberland Region—A. Charles Stewart, Frostburg; Hagerstown Region; The Rev. Walter McKinley, Breathedsville, and the Rev. Francis Leary, Hagerstown.

Maryland panel members representing the AFL include:

Cumberland Region—Charles E. Bramble, International Teamsters and Chauffeurs, Local 453, and Paul W. England, Mountain City Lodge 1140, International Association of Machinists.

Hagerstown Region—E. W. Butler, secretary, International Teamsters and Chauffeurs, No. 922, and Robert E. Snyder, Brotherhood of Railroad Clerks.

Maryland panel members representing the CIO include:

Cumberland Region—John G. Thomas and Boyd Payton Textile Workers Union of America, and John Sharp, United Rubber Workers of America.

Hagerstown Region—Joseph Craig and Frank Royston, United Automobile Workers of America, and Art Roseman, United Furniture Workers of America, Local 472.

24,747 SQUIRRELS KILLED IN ALLEGANY IN 1942 SEASON

E. Lee Le Compte, state game warden revealed last week that 41,524 pieces of game were killed in Allegany county in 1942. A report just received from the warden's office shows the breakdown on game killed in Allegany county as follows:

Pheasants 381; grouse 695; rabbits 13,666; turkeys 148; quail 1,059; squirrels 24,747; doves 17; chukars 24; raccoons 193; opossums 266; woodcock 66; ducks 195; geese 3; railbirds 11; deer 35.

In Garrett county where 26,543 pieces of game were killed in 1942, the breakdown is as follows:

Pheasants 474; grouse 1489; rabbets 8,251; turkeys 3; quail 71; squirrels 15,340; doves 6; chukars 20; raccoons 131; opossums 289; wood-

cocks 45; ducks 111; geese 1; rail-

birds 13 and deer 297.

In Washington county 32,313 pieces of game were killed the report shows the following:

Pheasants 169; grouse 92; rabbits 18,780; turkeys 44; quail 1,948; squirrels 9,364; doves 1,404; chukars 1; raccoons 32; opossums 312; wood-

cocks 11; ducks 101; geese 3; rail-

birds 26 and deer 26.

RIDGELEY OPENS WAR FUND DRIVE

The campaign to raise $1,300 in Ridgeley, the town's 1943 National War Fund drive quota, got under way yesterday and will continue until Oct. 28. William C. Klemm, chairman announced. Other members of his committee are Mesdames J. B. Martin, Sam Margarita, F. H. Moreland, Leon Hammond and Robert Fisher, zone captains.

Other committees are: Special gifts, J. S. Hutton and Leon Hammond; schools, Melvin Heskell; clubs, John Byer, William Coffman, J. W. Ridgeley, and Henry Brown; churches, Rev. Robert Greynolds.

A mass meeting will be held in the high school auditorium during the drive. A report meeting for all workers will be held in the council chamber on Wednesday night, October 20.

Employees Will Vote On Bargaining Rights

By mutual agreement between the Eureka-Maryland Assurance Company and the United Office and Professional Workers of America an election to determine bargaining rights for certain employees of the corporation will be conducted in the company office in the Liberty Trust building this morning at 10 o'clock.

Charles G. Heisel, Pittsburgh, UOPWA representative, who will represent the union, stated yesterday that eight employees of the company are eligible to vote.

Smith Receives $218.13

Willie O. Smith, Moorefield, has received a check for $218.13 from the Thompson Mahogany Company, Moorefield, W. Va., according to Horace B. Davis, CIO field representative.

Payment was ordered by the Baltimore office of the NLRB. Davis asserted that Smith was forced off the job when Local 296, United Furniture Workers of America, was being organized at the Moorefield plant.

Car Conservation Must Continue, Traffic Club Hears

There must be no let-down in the efforts to conserve cars, continue heavier carloading and saving of additional cardays, members of the Tri-State Traffic Club were told by their newly elected president, Max N. Freese, at the meeting held at the Algonquin hotel last evening.

It was reported that the House Ways and Means committee had a recommendation from Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, to abolish the three per cent tax on freight but to raise the tax on passenger transportation from the present ten per cent to twenty-five per cent, which would bring in an approximate revenue of $212,700,000 annually.

G. Murray Campbell, general freight traffic manager, Baltimore and Ohio railroad, Baltimore, in a short talk said that full credit must be given to shippers for the splendid co-operation which has helped the transportation industries to weather the peak of wartime traffic which is now at its height.

Following the business session a buffet lunch was served.

House-to-House Canvass for Paper Is Planned Here

Dates for Collection Are Not Yet Determined by Committee

A house-to-house canvass for paper and corrugated board will be held here shortly by the Allegany County Salvage Committee in an effort to help ease the nationwide paper shortage.

Plans for the canvass were made at a meeting of the committee last night in the chamber of commerce offices, but W. Donald Smith, local committee chairman, said dates for the collection have not been determined.

Smith said after the meeting that the committee believes between one and two carloads of paper are available here weekly, and pointed out that securing of a central warehouse for storage is the only thing holding up selection of dates.

In addition to the canvass, Smith said, merchants will be asked to co-operate by having their waste paper and corrugated board taken to the warehouse instead of having it burned.

"We want newspapers, magazines and corrugated board," Smith said, because paper mills in the country are desperately in need. Thirty pounds of paper are needed for every bomb dropped, he explained, and the labor shortage has hit cutting of timber and transportation of pulp wood.

The central warehouse, he explained, is needed to store the six to eight truckloads of paper that can be collected here daily. Then, he continued, it can be baled at the warehouse, and prepared for shipment.

Smith said after the meeting that the committee believes between one and two carloads of paper are available here weekly, and pointed out that securing of a central warehouse for storage is the only thing holding up selection of dates.

Observing the test besides Directors Dr. Robert W. Work, director of civilian defense for Allegany county, and Richard Boyle, assistant chief warden.

Heisel emphatically denied last night that he had any knowledge of four city policemen making an illegal entry into the home of Mrs. Mary L. Vogel, 304 Decatur street, last Friday.

Yesterday morning Mrs. Vogel told the mayor and city council police entered her home when she was away and "ransacked the place," while looking for a man named Weaver wanted by Baltimore's authorities.

James Orr, commissioner of police and fire, was present at the meeting but explained he did not know the details of what is alleged to have taken place. Chief of Police Oscar A. Eyerman also seemed unfamiliar with the case and was quoted as saying the assistant chief sent the men to the house.

Mrs. Vogel was not at home, Flynn stated, adding that Charles

Treiber Denies Knowledge of Illegal Entry into Decatur Street Home

Assistant Chief of Police John J. Treiber emphatically denied last night that he had any knowledge of four city policemen making an illegal entry into the home of Mrs. Mary L. Vogel, 304 Decatur street, last Friday.

Detective R. Emmett Flynn, who was mentioned at the council meeting yesterday morning in connection with the alleged illegal entry into the home, likewise declared he knew nothing about it until Saturday when he was asked by Commissioner Orr if he knew of a house being searched the night before.

Flynn said at 5 p. m. Friday he was given a warrant to go to the house and see if Weaver stayed there.

Mrs. Vogel was not at home, Flynn stated, adding that Charles had no knowledge of the officer.

Employes Will Vote On Bargaining Rights

By mutual agreement between the Eureka-Maryland Assurance Company and the United Office and Professional Workers of America an election to determine bargaining rights for certain employes of the corporation will be conducted in the company office in the Liberty Trust building this morning at 10 o'clock.

Charles G. Heisel, Pittsburgh, UOPWA representative, who will represent the union, stated yesterday that eight employes of the company are eligible to vote.

Smith Receives $218.13

Willie O. Smith, Moorefield, has received a check for $218.13 from the Thompson Mahogany Company, Moorefield, W. Va., according to Horace B. Davis, CIO field representative.

Payment was ordered by the Baltimore office of the NLRB. Davis asserted that Smith was forced off the job when Local 296, United Furniture Workers of America, was being organized at the Moorefield plant.
